

Oh, no! Do your students:

- Prefer Google over library resources?
- Cling to a thesis even if there's no evidence to support it?
- Cram inappropriate sources into their arguments?
- Quote sources without actually engaging with them?

Or...are you just nervous about teaching your first class?

If you answered yes to any of the above, you need

Research Assignments that Work!

Join UCLA Librarian Julia Glassman to talk about scholarly communication, learning outcomes, crafting smart assignments, and making the most of the UCLA Library's rich collection of knowledge resources.

Tuesday, January 20, 12:30-1:45

Powell Library Inquiry Lab 1 (Room 238)

Lunch will be provided.

To RSVP:

Email jglassman@library.ucla.edu with your name and the date you'd like to attend. Sessions may be canceled due to low enrollment, so please RSVP.

UCLA Library